Doors Close to Allow New Doors to Open

My family and my clients have been dealing with this subject. We all have had times when an ending came by surprise. My first marriage was like this and I had 3 babies at the time. Until I passed the initial fear, I did not realize that I never laughed when he was home and the ending led to some of the best years of my life. Some of my favorite Holistic Healers did their work as a hobby and surprise career endings or health issues brought them to great new careers. Relationship endings bring in room for the right person. One of my favorite sayings “a season, a reason or a lifetime” describes our romantic interests. Many of us involved in the Holistic World are 4th level souls (so my Spirits say). We work with people from past lives and the connection is so strong we are convinced that it is for a lifetime, when often these souls come in to help us with a lesson. If you think back, some of the worst relationships have given you the best lessons and prepared you for the best relationships. Have you ever looked back at an event from your life that a door shut on you and now you are grateful that the door closed? I know that I have had a few of these. Many of the classes that I took were for different reasons than how I am using the information now. I never thought that I would teach so many of the classes. My dream was for a store and I am grateful that it turned into a learning place instead. I have hours that I can continue with family and doggy time! Next time a door closes on you, have faith that a new door is getting ready to open. Believe that your Angels and Spirit team are helping you on your path and to open the new wonderful door. The more you believe, the easier it will be for your new beginnings. Wishing all of you open doors and wonderful new beginnings. Smile and let the Universe know that you are ready!

Love and Light
